Extract from the internal report made by the Humane Slaughter Association following their visit to the King Salmon East Bay Site on 2 July 2003.

Conclusions

New Zealand King Salmon has worked developing an effective handling and slaughter system. The system benefits from well designed facilities and trained, knowledgeable operators and achieves high standards of welfare by utilising the natural behaviour of fish.

Signed

T Benson.

Technical Officer

The Humane Slaughter Association is the only registered charity committed to the welfare of animals in markets, during transport and to the point of slaughter. It believes in a positive, rational approach to make lasting improvements to the welfare of food animals. Further information can be found on our website: www.hsa.org.uk.
